It's a quiet, settled road that still feels well connected, with easy access to White Hart Lane and the A27, making it a practical choice for day-to-day living and commuting alike.

The location works particularly well for convenience. Portchester village centre is just a short distance away, offering a range of independent shops, cafés and everyday essentials, while further shopping, dining and leisure options can be found at nearby Port Solent. For those who enjoy getting out and about, the historic Portchester Castle and the surrounding coastal paths provide a great spot for walks and time outdoors.

The area is also a strong draw for families, with several well-regarded schools close by. These include Castle Primary School, Wicor Primary School and Portchester Community School, all within easy reach, which adds to the overall appeal for those with children.

For commuters, the property is well placed. Portchester railway station is nearby and provides regular services to Portsmouth, Southampton and London, while the A27 and M27 are also easily accessible by car.

All in all, Myrtle Avenue is a great example of a location that balances convenience with a quieter residential feel. With amenities, schools and transport links all close at hand, it's easy to see why it remains a popular choice for a wide range of buyers.
